Art Unit: 2878

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the “right to exclude” granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-7 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claim 1 of copending Application No. 11/589,542. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claimed invention, claims 1-7, of the present application is a broader version of the claimed invention, claim 1, of the above identified copending application with similar intended scope. The further inclusion of display means for displaying control operation options of the control means and/or a comparison unit would have been inherently included in the main controller of the claimed invention of the above mentioned copending application.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Bae 6,552,316.

Bae discloses a glare protection system comprising: optical detection means (12) for detecting light generated from a welding or cutting torch; electromagnetic wave detection sensor means (7, 14) for detecting an electromagnetic wave generated from the welding or cutting torch; electromagnetic wave detection means (7, 14) for comparing a signal which input through the electromagnetic wave sensor means and resonated with a variably set reference value when an electromagnetic wave detection means drive signal is applied (Figures 2-4 and columns 3-6); and light transmission control means (3, 26, 28) for controlling variation of light transmittance of the dazzle prevention plate or the glare protecting plate (3) of the system in response to an output signal from the control means. The system includes a resonator, a filter and a comparator. The control means includes mode selection control function.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bae 6,552,316.

As per the discussion above, Bae lacks an inclusion of a display device for displaying control functions and/or a user interface, the use of a display device with user interface for providing better visual operating functions in an optical system would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Bae accordingly in order to provide a better control performance for the system.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

I) Gordon Re. 29,684 disclose a welding protection system with a control circuit.
